Sponsoring IIA Student Memberships

A membership in The IIA provides connections to more than 185,000 auditors in 170 countries and territories around the world. The IIA is a globally recognized professional organization. Membership in The IIA is the mark of professionalism: it is the profession’s voice, recognized authority, acknowledged leader, chief advocate, and principal educator.

Sponsoring student memberships is a means to connect business students with our professional organization. As members, students will receive regular updates on upcoming trainings and webinars, alerts on proposed legislation that could impact our profession, and information on career events and job postings.

Here’s How to Do It:

- Download the IIA Membership Brochure.

Special Note: Generally, memberships are provided to students who chapter/institute volunteers meet during on-campus events, at chapter/institute meetings, or other student-related sessions. Or these memberships may be offered to a college class, based on a reference from the professor.

- Once the students’ names and contact information have been determined, complete the application and provide a listing of each student with the required information.

- Include a check from the chapter/institute for the total amount.

- Send to The IIA (visit the North America or Global membership webpages for mailing information).

- Send an email to each student (or to the professor), acknowledging the sponsorship of the IIA membership.

Membership in The IIA is the mark of professionalism: it is the profession’s voice, recognized authority, acknowledged leader, chief advocate, and principal educator.